

The Federal Communication Commission should not weaken the new Jersey Do Not Call law which specifically, prevents businesses the ability to contact any person on the Do Not Call list who they have conducted business with during the last 18 months. The New Jersey law is fair and appropriate.